Based on the aforementioned questions let's travel in our imagination right now. Take a look at the following tapescript and make your reflections about TRAVELING:

Travelling gives you many wonderful experiences you cannot find in your own country. You meet local people and get to understand different cultures. It's so exciting. I love planning trips and doing some research on the country or countries I want to visit. Sometimes I like to plan everything in advance, my flights, hotels and tours, etc. For me, the most exciting thing is arriving in a country with no hotel reservation and no fixed plans. I prefer staying in hostels and guest houses. You get to meet and talk to different and interesting people and share information. I also like to visit places that are off the beaten track. Being somewhere with thousands of other tourists? It's not my cup of tea.

THINKING ABOUT YOUR TRIPS

(Fonte: <https://upload.wikimedia.org>).

Do you like traveling? Why? Why not?

When was the last time you traveled?

Where have you traveled to?

How did you go? By car? By bus? By plane?

How long did your journey take? Was it good?

How many people were with you? Who were they?

Did you have fun? Why? Why not?

Do you intend to return to this place? Why? Why not?

OBS: The answer from the question above must be recorded in English.

Traveling has many different meanings to people. Some, may even change people's life. You'll now read two stories, both have changed people's lifetime. While reading reflect about it.

STORY 1

In the past, I was a very important business man in my country, England. I had worked hardly to get my own discography, one of the most important discographies in the world.

Five years ago, I decided to go to India on holiday. I was exhausted and much stressed. Therefore I needed some time to think about my life. Although I had been successful in my work I was unhappy.

Then, I travelled to India by plane and alone. When I arrived in this country I discovered a different world. The people were poorer than me but they were happier than I had ever been. So I decided to find out the reason about the difference between my situation and people who hadn't got as many things as I had. I sold my discography and moved to India definitely. I began to work in a hospital and I have been working there since then.

On the other hand, I got married with an Indian nurse. In the end, I don't know why, but I feel better now.

"I sold everything I own" Hasmita Bhana, 28, studying an MBA in France

The trip New York City

Trip duration Nine days

I'd fantasised about visiting New York for about a decade before I actually made it happen in 2012. It wasn't at all the way I imagined (I thought there'd be celebrities on every street corner), but I loved it. What inspired me was walking through the city at night and seeing how alive it was. I loved how everyone was on a mission, and how everyone was accepted, whether they wore underwear as pants or had purple hair.

When I returned home I felt stifled, like there was a whole world out there for me to explore, and that being content wasn't good enough.

I spent hours on recruiting websites, trying to find a job in New York – but that’s tricky with a South African passport. Then, after a holiday to Europe last year, I decided to do something that would allow me to experience life in another country.

I’ve never been a risk taker, but New York made me realise how exciting life could be. I knew that in order for things to change, I’d have to take a daring step. So I sold everything – my flat, car, furniture – and cashed in my investments. I resigned from my job and applied to an international school to study an MBA. I’m equally passionate about travel and finance, and ultimately I’d love to combine the two. The MBA will allow me a career change, as well as afford me the opportunity to live and work overseas. In August this year, I leave for Singapore, where I’ll live and study for four months, and then my course takes me to France for six months.

I’m now starting from scratch, financially, which is a bit scary, but that trip to New York inspired me to be the best version of myself – and this is a step in that direction.

Now, based on the 2 stories I want you to record an audio giving your impression about them.

Would you be able to do something like that?

What is your opinion about the stories?

What really changed in Javier’s life?

What does “on the other hand” mean?

How did Hasmita feel when she got to New York?

What was Hasmita reaction when she got back home?
